

Judi Westberg Warren
President and Chief Executive Officer
Web Wise Kids

Judi Westberg Warren has nearly two decades' experience working with non-profit organizations spanning the nation from Orange County, California to Washington, DC. Since 2004, Westberg Warren has served as president of Web Wise Kids, a national 501(c)3 nonprofit organization that implements innovative and effective educational programs to assist youth to use the Internet and mobile technologies responsibly. Under her direction, more than seven million 'tweens and teens and thousands of parents in the U.S. have benefited from Web Wise Kids programs. Web Wise Kids programs are anticipated to reach more than 10 million youth nationwide by the close of 2010.

In addition to directing the staff and initiatives of Web Wise Kids and serving as a nationally renowned expert on digital citizenship and Internet safety for a wide variety of media outlets, Westberg Warren also forges partnerships for the organization with elected officials, law enforcement, educators, corporations, foundations and parents within the internet and digital safety communities. In this way, she helps to ensure that Web Wise Kids' highly effective programs – designed to be fun, challenging and interactive videogame-style simulations based on real-life digital responsibility scenarios - reach children and parents.

Westberg Warren frequently represents Web Wise Kids at White House Briefings on Children's Issues, Congressional and Senatorial hearings on Internet safety, Department of Juvenile Justice conferences, and other speaking engagements. In September 2009, Westberg Warren testified before the House Judiciary Committee in support of the Adolescent Web Awareness Requires Education Act (AWARE Act, H.R. 3222). In 2006, she was honored to meet with the Office of the First Lady on the issue of Internet safety and has testified before a Select Committee of the California State Senate and the National Committee on Missing and Exploited Children.

In 2005, Westberg Warren represented Web Wise Kids and the United States at an international conference on Internet safety in Taiwan. She serves on the Congressional Internet Caucus Advisory Committee, The Advertising Council Committee on Internet Safety, The Internet Safety Advisory Board for the Attorney General of Virginia, Cyber Safety Advisory Committee for the state of California and The Internet Safety Foundation of Colorado.

Other of Westberg Warren's career distinctions include a nomination for Orange County (California) Business Woman of the Year by Bank of America in 2005; and being named "One of 20 Women to Watch in 2009 in Orange County" by OC Metro Magazine.
